Conservative Newsletter To Expose Communists

NEW YORK, Aug. 14 (AP) —National Review magazine has announced plans to publish twice-monthly newsletter, titled Combat, to expose what it calls "Communist intrigues" in American life.

William F. Buckley Jr., editor of the conservative magazine, said in an open letter soliciting subscriptions that Combat would become "the rallying point for the forces struggling to restore an orderly America."

A credo from the editors said Combat considers as its target areas:

"The Old Left, the New Left; the rebellious student groups and the 'situationist' philosophy behind many of them; the extremist black nationalist movements; the peaceniks and the draft card burners; leftward-drifting churchmen and their religious organizations; the 'marchers'; the hippies; sections of the communications media; and the 'respectables' who give aid and comfort to the radical elements."
